

Dr. Gye Johnson

Gye is an executive coach and leadership expert who partners with entry-level, mid-, and senior-level leadership to help maximize employee engagement, build a positive organizational culture, and cultivate professional and personal growth through dedicated, focused commitment.

Gye believes that each client is unique, and each challenge facing a client is an opportunity for that client to excel. Gye has supported countless leadership challenges throughout his tenure in the federal government and private industry. Through it all, Gye has learned that there is no “one size fits all” approach and that each leader brings their own special set of challenges, opportunities, skills, knowledge, and achievements. Gye has developed a unique style and approach that helps leaders expand their self-awareness, confront and address their challenges, and develop action plans for the future.

Gye is an executive coach formally trained at George Mason University. Additionally, Gye holds a degree of Doctor of Management in Organizational Leadership and Master of Project Management.
